He appears to commencing at 5 p.m. The following is the consider that it would be quite possible for foreign merchants, to raise counter-combina-Chinese with a view to conducting business to their own advantage, and he looks upon the competition which characterises foreign trade in China, as an unnecessary and very unfortunate element. That the suicidal competition which too often enters into mer- the Community at Canton is published, alto be regretted, there can be little or no quento be sought rather in a spread of prudence, if such can be hoped for, than in anything in the form of an artificial combinations. Attempts at the latter remedy have been over and over again made; but they have, affairs at this port. As regards the eafety of the growth of the Tobacco plant, and in the invariably failed; and with such experience, it may reasonably be considered as futile to part of the Chinese population, and request the Hemp used in making Grass Gloth is impulse any further efforts in the same direction. The fact may be taken as plainly established zle very good heads to ascertain exactly what concerned shall conclude such arrangements advanced last year seems to have been well is the reason for this, but of the fact, there is simply no doubt whatever. A vast number . I fully understand and appreciate the motives the area usually covered by Sugar plantations of disquisitions similar to that made by Mr. KLEINWACKTER have been published on this but still every year more and more competi-

So also with My own view is, and has always been, that working expenses average about 1,600 cash per respect to the sale of imports. The merchants here might agree to hold T-Ciotha; heiter for if the Chinese think we are getting simply rented by him, the usual rent is 80 cash Shirtings or Yarn at certain prices, but the nervous, it will be an inducement to them per day, making the total working expenses next incoming mail would bring advices to either in a spirit of mischief, or perhaps worse, 2,400 cash. It is an open question whether the advantages of free competition have not in some degree been over-estimated, and whether, at the present day, a principle good in itself has not been carried to detrimental lengths. This would appear to be the case by what is seen going on in places such as China, where the foreign merchant, who has to shape his course according to a system of competition, finds himself completely outwitted by the combinations among the Chinese. But the remody for this is scarcely likely to be found in aftificial counter giring wilful false testimony, were fined $50 the cane is ground and the juice is parcombination; even if such were possible. The natural combining influence of trade is capital, and it is probable that in the long run, it will not be found advantageous to attempt any other mode of combination, at least with respect to general trade. The tendency of such a state of affairs as exists in China, is ultimately to cause the trade to go more and more into the hands, either of large home capitalists, who will consign on against Soo Akin, of Eunoy, a shopkeeper, native account, or into those of firms baving sufficiently extensive business to be able in some measure to control the course of the markets. In this way a certain counterbalancing influence will be produced against the combinations among the natives, and, Ordered to find security in one bouseholder for defective though this remedy is, it is questionable whether any other would not be found productive of more unfavorable results than t would overcome. No doubt, it appears at Sret sight, as Mr. KLEINWACHTER argues, .hat trade combinations could be made without being attended with the ovils of trade unionism and coercion, but the history of all such arrangements goes to prove that they always tend towards either director indirect of a Chinaman by Mr. F. Closely, pursued through Liuneville and Naucy, he had barely time at Chalons to gather together a fresh host, largely consisting of recruits and soldiers long dissued to war's alarms. Unable even there to make bead against his pursuers, he had still the hardibood to make a desperate effort to relieve Metz, and liberate the army of Bazaine. Again surrounded and borne back by irresistible numbers, for four consecutive days he faced the enemy, and inspired his own courage into the troops under his command. But when he fell all was over. There was no other leader in whom the soldiers had any confidence, and a carnage. Nothing, perhaps, gives one a more painful idea of the slaughter of those terrible days than the simple statement that it was number of dead bodies floating down the Meuse. There is sumething revolting to the buman mind that even in death there should be no peace or rest for the bodies of those poor coldiers—cwept along in the still waters of the placed Mouse, beneath the steep beights of Namur, past the busy forges of Lieges, and so away to the German Rhine, a blood-offering to the ancient Heans.

An Abolo Chinese Diorionary, by the Rev.

W. LOBSCHEID, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. MOR scope and practical service this Work C stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been com-pelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in catenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exeroises for students of a most instructive nature.

Both the Court and Punti pronuncuations are review, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those yest margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. The scope of the work is so great, and its utilitarian purposes so complete, that a re-ference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chi- tions, and Dr. WILLIAMS Orthography plains subjects fully, with which very few in deed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in It comprises upwards of two thousand large
